

3CU: Workers' Compensation for Emerging Markets

Third Coast Underwriters (3CU) has the experience to evaluate new and emerging industries. Whether high- or low-tech, new classes of business need to be evaluated with an open mind and an eye toward understanding of the client's workers' compensation requirements. Using our individual account model, our underwriting and loss control team assesses client needs allowing us to design programs matching their needs.

By definition, a listing of emerging market risks cannot be all inclusive. However, below, are some examples of accounts that may fall into that category.

Examples of emerging markets operations that we write, subject to our $150,000 minimum, include:

- Waste reduction and recycling
- Alternative energy and green industries — Manufacturing, generation, distribution and transportation
- Biodiesel
- Ethanol
- Fuel cells
- Geothermal
- Solar farms
- Wind farms

If your business demands a creative, custom-fit approach to workers' compensation, 3CU may be the answer.

Excluded operations:

- Asbestos removal and all standard exclusions
- Professional employer organizations (PEOs) and temporary services
- Risks involved in the manufacturing, transportation, handling or storage of explosives, fireworks, or nuclear materials are ineligible
